| A1  | B12, one of the UK's first wave of pure techno acts, are back again to take you above and beyond with their trademark deep space techno and electro soundscapes. After appearing on the '5 Years De:tuned' album with the track 'Let Me Free', B12 return to De:tuned with more transient music for the mind. Transient Life contains 4 new productions from B12 member Steven Rutter. Futuristic atmospherics and intricate drum programming are the order of the day, and there is a sense of mystery present that is both beautiful and haunting. Travelling without moving aptly expresses the feeling this music evokes. B12 manage to lay down another timeless slice of forward-thinking ambient techno, perfect for a journey into the space age. All tracks were lovingly mastered by Matt Colton. The vinyl release is presented on 180 gr coloured vinyl with artwork by Abdul Haqq of Third Earth. A digital release will also be available. Stay tuned! |   |   |

For those who know Antigone and DEMENT3D's co-founder Francois X, it is impossible to draw the line between their collaboration and friendship. Three years ago, when the duo began exchanging tips on records, production techniques and gears, they had nothing particular in mind. This strategy, or lack thereof, revealed to be much more beneficial to both. One night of 2013, Francois X invites Antigone to DSCRD's studio -- a creative bunker in Paris suburb that was DEMENT3D's inner circle headquarters at the time. This friendly, spontaneous session quickly turned into a creative workshop and by the end of the evening, "The Hated SZ" was already there. As you may imagine, projects spanning over such a long time can be risky. You get lost, but that's what the boys wanted. While slowly affirming their personal sound signature, they were crafting new textures, where their mutual sense of fine dance music and detailed production would hit a new freedom threshold. Francois X admitted to be under the spell of Aposuspita, an art performance and mystical character created by french artist Laura O'Rorke for which he created the soundtrack

| A1 | The analog beat-grinder from Japan, Miclodiet, is back on Genesa Records with his distinctive, gnarly sound. Yasunobu usually releases his material on his own cassette-only label, Sludge -Tapes, but during the last 2 years, you were able to see him appear on GENESA005V alongside JoeFarr, VSK & the label boss Scalameriya or on our digital only division with a complete EP, remixed by Martyn Hare, Alhek & Forest People. For his debut vinyl EP, he prepared some stripped down, ultra minimalistic techno stompers infused with recognizable hooks and drones. An absolute must-have for djs who are searching for refreshments to add to their crate! |

| A1 | The next reference Injected Poison Records is loaded with an original track by Jose Pouj and 3 remixes from Jonas Kopp, Luis Ruiz and Kwartz. A deep and sharp, with dark sounds and atmospheres of fear EP. The original track by Jose Pouj, leaves a path laden with thick deep bass line, atmospheres and a hat that comes all the way. Jonas Kopp remix more forceful with a stronger kick and a more progressive and sharp hats. The remix of Luis Ruiz leaves show their usual sound that identifies this artist, maintaining the original sounds does your personal brand. Kwartz, a young producer who hits hard, perhaps the deepest and darkest part of the EP, making atmospheres pro- tagonist and a strong kick and sub bass. A full EP that does not disappoint. Mycobacterium, the eighth installment of the Spanish label Injected Poison Records. For this occasion the label has invited only Spanish techno producers: Jose Pouj with 2 original tracks and remixes by Tadeo and NX1 with his take in analog format... |

| A1                | Oscar Mulero is the man behind our release number 37, helped on remix duties by two of the main members of our team: Architectural and Tensal, who offer four different versions of Oscar's originals. The first track is "Second Skin", with slow paced beats and dubby chords that mutate and run around the arrangement, taking us to the classic days of Basic Channel. Architectural changes the bass drum, adds some low frequency punch and spreads the reverb at the beginning. He then adds wet and liquid drones and a profound stereo work. Mental techno at its best. The digital version boasts an extra remix by Architectural. Its broken rhythms, slow tempos, atmospheres and reverberations make this rework an ideal opening track for intelligent techno sets. "Rotar" keeps the slow tempos and the liquidness of the drums, adding some flanged percussion and using once more a chord-based synth to keep the flow. Tensal is the man in charge of these remakes. The first one, totally different from the original, has a compact kick and heavy subbass action, tensioned hats, filtered chords and continuous cabasa rhythms that transform a mental track into a club stomper |             |

Following Earth Being Recycled on Detroit Underground, the Argentine project are debuting on vinyl with five tracks of off-world electronics. The chilling atmospherics of "Body Container" meet the needle before an electro iciness takes hold. Spiking snares and echoed radiowaves orbit the moody "Walk In", that same frosted futurism central to "Level Above Human". Telkhin melts man and machine, giving the computer age a humanoid form. Processors whirr in the bassy bleeps and residues of "Brithomber" before the final statement. Leaving the human world behind "Flight 19" is a fast and future funk driven piece of 2050 music. | A1   | Another new face graces the halls of Soma's roster as American based Techno artist Jeff Derringer make a blistering debut with Panic. Jeff weighs in with 2 top-notch hypnotic Techno tracks and we also welcome a debut on Soma from the incomparable Mike Parker who whips up his usual storm of sound on his remix of title track Panic. Not time is wasted as the EP open with all guns blazing. Staccato synth hooks loop out of control as buzzing percussion fuels the fire within this track. Bent out bass and sub aquatic pings keep this track rooted in the depths of unrelenting Techno. Fellow American Mike Parker follows up Jeff's onslaught with his completely unique version of Techno. A solid 909 kick is warped beyond reality with looped out, frenzied synths that only Mike seems to be able to control. Percussive blips give rise to Mike's intentions within this remix as his keeps it dark, hypnotic and turbulent. Panic Attack closes the EP with a little lighter edge as big chords permeate thunderous low end and dubbed out percussion |  |   |

| A1      | This is the Portuguese master's second round, after the success of his Blood EP on PoleGroup. This time Fautzi goes mental with three original tracks and an extra remix by Oscar Mulero. "Unconsciousness" is an hypnotic piece of floating techno, based on heavy subsonic workout, high frequency drones, FM sequences and a steady arrangement. It is presented here in two different versions, both of them aimed directly to your mind. Plus this two versions by the very artist, there is an Oscar Mulero remix cleaning the subbass spectrum, adding percussive elements and going in a different direction, more peak time oriented. "Default" runs along similar parameters; breathing ambiances, slow-paced rhythms, cyclical synths and sharp percussions that preserve the mental state of its predecessor. To close in style, Oscar Mulero gives "Default" a twist by putting the drones away, going straight to the percussive madness and spicing it up with a few liquid components. Mind-induced mixing tools for the smart heads out there |             |
