- B2 > juggler "Rene Wise"

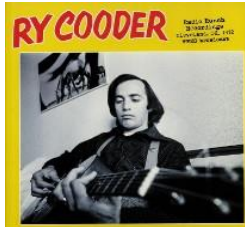

Some proper straight forward techno on Reclaim Your City. Their first 2020 release 'Liquid Shards' - a split 12" epic courtesy of Den Haag's TAPE co-founder Deniro and Brighton's new sensation Rene Wise. No-bullshit techno that moves in between plural states of consciousness, the two producers harness a double pair of laser-accurate rollers that pack some serious punch, trimmed, shaped and polished for optimum impact on the dance floor. Deniro steps up with a duo of streamlined techno bullets that delve smack dab the cream of '90s atmospheric and dubbed-out tech territories. Whilst zoned out opener 'Shards' cracks the mirror into an infinity of glassy textured synth splinters and solar-powered sub-bass moves, sure to lift off any crowd through some intensive, stamina-testing deus-ex-machina, pared-down banger 'Static' lets out the playful bassy bounce and bleep-laden engineering do the talk for a straight out bone-crushing workout that quietly engulfs everything in its wake. Flip it over and here's Rene Wise running the hoodoo down in truly massive 4x4 sensei fashion

ASTEROID B-612 "Forced Into a Corner" is released for its very first time on vinyl! This is the second album of legendary Australian band ASTEROID B-612, and it is the killer predecessor to their cult album "Not Meant For This World!". Originally recorded and released in Melbourne, Australia in 1994, this album was produced by Dave Thomas from BORED!. So... you can assume it is a monster piece of sonic hazard and guitar army sound mixing Detroit's wildest with Australian classics. This album was released only on CD and only in Australia, and it's been remastered in order to deliver the most brutal sound of this band, as it was. A total must for all fans worldwide of MC5, Stooges, Dark Carnival, Sonic's Rendezvous Band, Radio Birdman, The New Christs, Bored!, Hellcopters, etc. Limited edition of 500 copies!

This album was the last for one of the founders of The Cavestompers! Ivan 'Cosmos'. His final contribution was the authorship of several songs. Do not look for him on the cover photo - he is Kosmos and invisibly present in our ranks like a phantom. His place at the moment occupied by Paul Petrov, who together with Ilya 'Crusher' Sterzhanov in the 90s founded the first Russian garage punk band the Crushers

A1 > saluf B1 > badawee	2019 was a busy year for Kutiman, he released several singles (including his collaborations with Turkish singer Melike Sahin and Rioghnach Connolly), as well as his Psychedelic Jazz Funk ep "Lines From Different Sources". So it should come as no surprise that Kutiman's first release for 2020 is the monster "Saluf/Badawee", two track desert funk 7". Both compositions on this limited edition vinyl are unmistakably in line with Kutiman's psychedelic, heady funk-jazz musical legacy, but they also introduce a new approach in production esthetics and a narrative characterized by the essence of the region they were recorded in. Saluf is an irresistible hypnotic middle eastern brain melter that is steadily building and charging with harmonizing synths and horns on top of dubbed out drums and handclaps. Think a pitched down Omar Soulyman instrumental meets Tinariwen in a smokey club and you're getting close. Known to be one of the highlights of the Kutiman Orchestra's live sets and a certified crowd pleaser, capturing the spirit of Saluf in the studio was like capturing lightning in a jar

Some say due to the extreme heat that hit the island that year, making frenzied dance routines of the earlier sounds seem like hard work in the all night Sound System Sessions. Others would say Reggae's beat is always evolving and changing into something slightly different and moving with the times. Whatever the reasons were, this two year period that ran until 1968, would see some of the power escape from then big three producers, Cemet 'Coxone' Dodd, Prince Buster and Duke Reid, who ruled the airwaves. They had to finally make room for the new wave of up and coming producers who had something to say. Such names as Joel Gibson (Joe Gibbs), Sonia Pottiger, Derrick Harriot and the most prolific of them all, Mr Bunny Lee, would unleash some fine music in this fascinating, if short lived period in Reggae's history. We have compiled some of the biggest hits from the Rocksteady era alongside some lesser known cuts we believe deserve to be re-evaluated. Rocksteady was an inspirational time and some may say a little overlooked, but we hope you agree with us when we say that it brought us some outstanding music. So sit back and enjoy some Rocksteady straight from the dancefloors of Jamaica. Hope you enjoy the set...

Drawing on experience from decades of DJing, musical production, sound engineering and intergalactic excursions, RDG has thoroughly matured his undeniable skill of orbiting and perfectly blending the dimensions of jungle, dubstep, techno, DnB, experimental, leftfield and downtempo music into a coherent and captivating sonic journey. Following more than 25 EP releases over the past 10 years, "Planetary Sound Fiction" is by far RDG's most exhaustive work to date and presents a sound, encompassing anything else released by the Danish producer so far

Together on the A-side with DJ Wank; a great acid techno producer from Sweden; pounding driving acid techno. Then last but not least; label owners Jack Wax (Flatlife Records) & Sam C. (Dosis Decibel / Cat in the Bag) team up; with this excellent dark acidcore track "Missing" - which is the 1st track they ever created together!! 4 styles of acid again on 1 vinyl! Enjoy this one!!! The Chilean band Follakzoid released their latest album via Sacred Bones last year. The Bitta label boss turns around the final track twice, adding his deep techno hypnotism creating two powerful remakes. "When I heard Follakzoid's music for the first time, I felt like what we are trying to express are fundamentally similar. In other words, I felt like we are both trying to reach the same destination. And one day we met each other in the forest. Domingae and I discovered that we share the same love for Cortozar. The encounter between Follakzoid and myself is a game designed by the universe. Therefore our collaboration was a destiny, but it also imposed me the most difficult challenges I faced in my music life. A1 > advanced series vol. ii b1 (hardgroove edit) "Gaetek (Ben Sims rmx)"	More than 20 years after it first launched, Gaetano Parisio has revived his well regarded techno label Conform. Now back to take up its place at the heart of the international scene. The first release of the new era is the start of a new CONFORM RE-TOUCHE SERIES which will be released over the coming months and contain classic Conform tracks that have been re-edit by big techno artists. The first release contains four tracks plus one digital only bonus with heavyweights Ben Sims, Mark Broom, James Ruskin, Truncate and Stojche all stepping up. UK techno legend and Machine man Ben Sims is up first. His Hardgroove edit of Gaetek's is a brutal track with driving drums and unrelenting synths that bring it into the present day with a real sense of style. Mark Broom is another long time techno titan who has released on the best labels from M-Plant to Blueprint and he edits the B1 from C&G Southsystem's Dual EP. The result is an edgy track with big hi hats and hammering drums all run through with some bright synths that melt your mind. James Ruskin is another vital techno player who runs his own legendary Blueprint label

Calum Gunn has spent the past few years becoming a key figure in the European electronic avant-garde. As well as releasing his own music through labels like Entr'acte, FLUF and Tsuku Boshi, the Berlin-based Gunn also helms Conditional Records, one of the most forward-thinking computer-music imprints to emerge in recent times. Gunn's Addenda EP, his debut drop for Central Processing Unit, contains some of his most dynamic work to date. While his commitment to experimentalism remains, these four tracks represent a clear shift in focus for Gunn - namely that, for perhaps the first time in his career, he is making music that is club-friendly. A whole host of dancefloor innovators are recalled when listening to Addenda - particularly Autechre, Analdord-era AFX and several of Mark Pritchard's projects as well as Gunn's contemporaries Rian Treanor and Renick Bell. These tracks never sit still, their rhythms constantly evolving and turning themselves over. Addenda's first two cuts use metronomic hi-hats to keep these ever-changing grooves in check. With its thwacking kicks and snares, opener 'Esephony' enters the fray with the heft of an early Wiley riddim

Dame-Music kicks off 2020 with a bang! For her first release of the decade, label head Bloody Mary has teamed up with Barcelona-based artist Cardopusher (Dark Entries, Zone, Super Rhythm Trax, Boysnoize Records) to deliver an EP full of hard-hitting, acidic EBM weapons. Conformity Kills is an ode to all those who go against the norm. But what exactly is the norm? Who makes up the rules? Why are they in control? Bloody Mary & Cardopusher's first outing together on the A-side sees the pair serve up the EP's title track 'Conformity Kills' - a high-energy original complete with a broken-beat alternative mix. On the flip side, the pair are joined for additional vocals by Lbeeze on "Out Of Control". The package is rounded out with a heavy remix from EBM man of the moment, Sarin, fresh off the back of his album on Phase Fatale's "Bite" in late 2019.

After an intensive 2019, which saw Michal Wolski release a number of EPs, he's starting 2020 with a return to Boddika's Nonplus Records with 'Chant' - a 12 filled with deep, driving, detailed Techno. This new release, explores more nuanced and hypnotic territories of electronic music, placing off-beat and ambient structures alongside 4x4 Techno rhythms. 'Chant' is a sonic experimentation with modular synthesizers and a plethora of modern, digital-era tools. In addition to Wolski's original work, is a remix from one of the most visionary modern Techno producers of our time, Anthony Linell, co-founder of the Northern Electronics record label

Beard Man label boss Mark Broom returns to Radio Slave's Rekids with a swinging techno focused four-tracker entitled 'Raver EP'. Since the early 90s, renowned UK artist and DJ Mark Broom has been cherished for his consistent output of rhythmically charged techno and energy spiking performances with releases on Warp, R&S, Soma, Hardgroove and Blueprint alongside collaborations with artists such as Baby Ford, James Ruskin, Discrete Circuit and Gary Beck. A regular on Rekids, Broom's contributed numerous releases and remixes to Matt Edwards' label - notably last year's massive 'Break 97 EP' - and his next outing sees the prolific producer return with four more versatile club-focused cuts. 'Raver' opens with boomy kicks, splashing cymbals and aggressive stabs until 'Insta' trembles the floor with rolling snares, driving rides, distorted claps and arpeggiated synth patterns. On the flip, 'Midnight' takes retro sounding keys and adds peak time drive with lofi drums, distant vocals and a sleek funk line sample before 'Hear Me' electrifies with a tease of classic 90s-esque lyrics, bouncing toms and elated chords

Throughout his career, Roger Semsroth has followed a deep intuition for experimentation in sound, wrapping club music around eerie microtonal motifs and industrial sensibilities. This new work for Tresor takes a step forward, as the first true techno album from Sleeparchive, where his previous LPs have exhibited themselves more conceptually, or under different names and his Nord Vest label. Semsroth has been active in electronic music since the late 90s. He received initial attention first for his electro productions under the alias Skanfrom and the 80s minimal synth inspired Television Set. These projects echoed his love for these sounds, which the East Berliner had steadily immersed himself with after the end of the GDR. Upon hearing the bleeps of Mika Vainio and Plastikman, he began to engage with his strain of techno. Over the last decade, he has focused on his Sleeparchive alias, which dates back to 2004. Alongside close friend DJ Pete, he performs live techno as TR-101. His relationship with Tresor began in 2011, first releasing the Ronan Point EP and following up with the crucial A Man Dies In The Street series in 2013

It is written and produced by Francesco Strippoli aka Armonics and follows his first mini LP on Slow Motion Records, Nuovi Orizzonti. Starlight Keeper smells of night time at the beach, fishing in the dark, under a sky of stars. The title track is a dancefloor pleaser reminiscent of early 90s Dream House that soars on a synthy melody, pierced with an acid line. Twenty-Two is an arpeggiated iteration of Italo Disco: hallucinogenic, suspensive, vibrating with melancholic strings. The drums of Living Waves support buoyant sonic layering while the Chicago inspired Portal projects the listener to that moment when night yields to the light again

A1 > fall to rui	Sam Deliaart AKA Farrago steps up with a new four-tracker on Amelie Lens' imprint LENSKE. Kidney Shot is his third outing on the label following the very much revered Risin' EP -which in 2018 inaugurated LENSKE including a collaboration with Lens and a remix by Kobosil- and the killer uncompromising Neontrance from last summer. Ahead of appearances at Awakenings Festival, Kappa Futur Festival, the OFFSonar Exhale party in Barcelona, Rotterdam Rave and touring through India, Japan and Canada this year, the Belgian DJ & producer returns in pure form. The record opens with Fall To Ruin where Farrago continues to develop his industrial yet trancey production, delivering high levels of energy to the dance floor. The title track Kidney Shot is the perfect example of this intention too. With total expertise he manipulates echoes with synths creating unexpected and ecstatic breakdowns. On the other side, Flavours Of Youth unleashes a melodic cut with an immersive bass. The EP concludes with the electrifying sound of Vizio

A1 > aural love	Musique Pour La Danse is proud to release Collected: Ambient Grooves 1993 - 2001, an anthology of music created by Osamu Sato, the Kyoto-born, Tokyo-based digital artist, photographer, and composer whose career began in the early 80s. In 1983, he released a cassette accompanied by silkscreen prints on Kaoru Sato's (EP-4, Vanity Records) sought-after Skating Pears label. He gained worldwide notoriety after creating cult video games Eastern Mind for Mac OS and LSD Dream Emulator for Sony Playstation, and composing groundbreaking soundtracks for both. This latter game, quite unlike anything before or after is often praised as a masterpiece that started a new era in the gaming community. "Osamu Sato remains one of the most sought-after and intriguing personalities in the world of cult gaming, a spirit that haunts those who hunt the surreal and those who clamor for more like he produced in the past" as VICE once put it. The previously unreleased and exclusive music gathered on this release explores the interzone between ambiance and a certain sense of groove and motion

A1 > juggernaut	Scalameriya returns to Perc Trax for his second solo EP for the label following on from "Hellzone Megapunk" from early in 2018. As expected Perc Trax's Serbian representative once again pushes his sound forward matching his ear for innovative sound design with his innate sense of rhythm. A-side track "Juggernaut" has already been a highlight of both Scalameriya and Perc's DJ sets since last year and has proved itself to be a guaranteed floor destroyer time and time again. Flip it over and both "Vicious Remedy" and "Plathole" focus more on steady timbral build-up than instant rhythmic destruction. Both gradually winding up over the course of their first few minutes before peaking with an explosion of energy. As with "Hellzone Megapunk" the 12" sleeve and release artwork for this EP is a collaboration between Perc Trax's resident design crew Adult Art Club and esteemed illustrator New Tasty. Both worked closely with Scalameriya and Perc Trax to ensure the perfect visual representation of Scalameriya's razor sharp future facing techno

BAKK	CUCINA POVERA & HARON - PLAFOND 6	18.00 € 16.38 €
BAKKPLAFOND6		LP
AMBIENT / ABSTRACT / SOUND-COLLAJE	Release: 30 - March - 2020	NLD
Plafond enters its second decade with Cucina Povera and Haron fusing the folkloric and futurist. Maria Rossi and Haron Aumaj (real names) honour musical cinematism on 'Riffittelya', which slowly unfolds during a twenty-two minute trail of exploration, angst and redemption. Meddling voices pinch through an aural mist, Kubrickesque strings impend and cathedral organs relevelate. Most striking is the compatibility of Rossi's tangibility and Aumaj's computerisation, seamlessly forming a renewed dynamic, as granular as it is loose in texture. During this unique first collaboration it can be quickly forgotten both artists have highly distinctive styles. We are reminded of these singularities on the other half of the record, featuring two solo works, both rich yet contrasting in their colour and emotion. On 'Maandag, Spiegeldag', Aumaj sketches in orange chromatics, a featherweight composition that feels far away from the greyscale fragility that Rossi portrays on 'Ajatus'. Showcasing two minimalist artists catapulted by their stunning debut albums, this sixth Plafond keeps the listener in constant awe, pointing us to the endless potential of spontaneity

microcastle begins 2020 by welcoming Cornucopia back to the label for a new EP. The mysterious artist makes a much-anticipated follow-up to the July 2018 release 'Forever Gone'. The three-track offering saw a wide spectrum of play and support from some of the underground's top tastemakers in Adam Port, Ame, Baikal, Dixon, Frankey & Sandrino, Guy J, Jimi Jools, Laurent Gamier, Luca Bacchetti, Patrice Baumel and Solomun. With a release on Multinotes to highlight 2019, Cornucopia now lands back on microcastle with 'River of Memories' to begin the new year. Elusive and organic in equal measure, the transcendent nature of Cornucopia has the rare ability to unite a cross section of music lovers. The romantic sounds of 'River of Memories' sits as perhaps the most apt illustration, invoking a rare combination of hope, heartache, reflection and meditation across it's eleven-minute storyboard. Shrouded in mystery for nearly three years after countless live airings, it's the pensive nature of 'Holding You Tight When The World Collapses' that follows
