Society is shaped by its history, stories that have evolved over time and held to be true. Stories of the imagination, stories from the ill-informed, stories conjured by favored subjects, but all loosely wrapped in the truth. Systems such as morals, religion, politics, and a culture are powerful enough to influence the mind of one and the minds of many and therefore direct the evolution of the species. Unseen Forces is a conceptual work that dissects this idea. A collection of four songs cause the listener to re-examine not only what they believed to be real and true but also why. Side A dives head first into testing your belief system by introducing the first stage of influence - Disruption and Experimentation. Introducing a simple question into the belief system that cannot be answered and observing the result. The Disruptor - subtle but powerful making its point with eerie, off center synth lines, and synthesized drums. Driving a wedge between the listener and the comfort of familiarity. Dr. Blowfin's Experiment - a long time and highly revered classic previously released on SID, continues to re-evaluate beliefs with modifications to the original. The question of why is still unanswered

The suborbital German brotherhood Echoton, united by free creative intelligence and mutual expansion of the musical range, deciphers the mystery of the mind machine. Detail-organic, avalanche-like electroacoustics of Alexander and Michael rushes to the top of the console futurism. The flow of sound, though not always obvious, manipulations creates a sense of dynamic balance. The incomprehensibly abstract environment, saturated with biology and meaning of digital structures, finds its culmination in a Remix from the master of uncompromising grooves — Basicnoise! His boundless space Odysseys are echoed by a deep bass that abolishes ephemeral musical constructions

A1 > not doing it again

B2 > start over

In the wake of the monumentally successful first two releases (both of which sold out and were re-pressed), VDK returns with an extra special third outing. 'Outing' being the operative word, here, as VDK's label head has decided that it is time to shake off the veil of anonymity and lay all bare. The story starts in Holland, with Dutch producer and DJ, Odette. Tired of the mainstream, Odette planned to carve her own notch in the underground and thus VDK (an acronym of her surname) was born. In typical Odette style, the four tracks present on the EP are loaded with emotive moments, all powered by the house sound for which we know and love our producer. VDK is a home for music that makes you feel, and that is exactly how Odette performs with her latest release on the label; VDK003

A combination of deep drums throbbing through layers of bass lines and melodious partitions. He outset with "Cezariad" – a dynamic composition with satiny claps that evolve throughout the time of listening into a core part of the piece. With a start-to-end listening, we can hear the bass line groaning sometimes in the back of the glossy keys and electronic environment. The casual shots are colonizing the imagination of the listener, estranging it from the primary source of the sound. A peaceful start is something to sum this up. "Black Gold" – the name speaks for itself. A metallic continuance of the record with generosity in bleakly sounds and eccentric build up. The digitalization of this track can be felt from the first minute and we talk about the sonification of Root's message through this particular piece. It reminds us of a playful xylophone paired with floor rhythms in a minimalistic entourage

Friedrich Raphael preps us for a glistening summer with the release of his second EP on Istanbul based Petra Digital/Vinyl Recordings, entitled 'Koi'. The EP features remixes from Berlin artist, Sense of Sun and Kassel based Herb Rhythm adding an extra flavour to the work of art, whilst keeping to the key theme of warm summer nights we all long for. All arranged in a tight package of digital and vinyl. Friedrich pays homage to classic deep house with his first track, 'Vitra'. The powerful kick drum drives the energy of this original mix which allows a mellow pad and slapping bass to play off one another, giving us a powerful groove to move our feet to. 'Villa' gives the dancer a harsher taste of Friedrich's music with the percussive elements becoming more active whilst still maintaining the distinctive vibe. A touch of class from the blossoming talent, with his grip tightly gripped on a bright future. Sense of Sun takes 'Vitra' and gives it a rework in his own refreshing style. The intended feel of the track is still at the forefront but Sense Of Sun stamps it with a hint of a disco feel, with the constant shuffle of the hi-hat line and funky bass steering the track towards this road of happy feels

Een futuristische koortsdroom, dat is Neon Fever Dream, het nieuwe album van Compact Disk Dummies. Op hun tweede langspeler dromen de West-Vlaamse MIA-winnaars Lennert en Janus Coorevits van hologrammen, drones, drugs, hifite en eenzaamheid. Om dan wakker te worden, het gordijn open te trekken en te beseffen dat fictie niet bestaat. Neon Fever Dream is de coming of age van de Dummies en zet de verwarring van onze tijd om in een donkere, dreigende, maar o zo dansbare popplaat. In 2017 filmt de titel door zijn hoofd: Neon Fever Dream. Dat wordt 'm. Lennert Coorevits neemt snel pen en papier en tekent een klein, raamloos, neonverlicht hotel dat wegzakt in drijfzand. De tekening verbeeldt de vervreemding die een koortsdroom opwekt. De sfeer van het desolate hotel en het neonlicht voeren hem in gedachten naar de jaren zestig, en herinneren Lennert aan sciencefictionromans

"Room With A View" sees Rone returning to his musical roots and the set-up of his early albums: purely electronic, solitary conceived without any musical collaborators. At the same time he was able to leave his comfort zone through a new kind of artistic liaison. The album was produced alongside a live show commissioned by the Théâtre du Châtelet in Paris and developed together with choreography collective (LA) HORDE and 20 dancers of the Ballet National de Marseille. This new kind of collaborative approach allowed Rone to produce his most sincere and far-reaching music in some time. Inspired by discussions of collapsologie and climate change, „Room With A View“ offers food for thought on how to deal with one of the most pressing issues of humanity. The Frenchman manages to let his trademark sound shine in a new light, pleasing early fans as well as every electronica enthusiast. Typically melodic beats like „Ginkgo Biloba“ nestle against tracks that exhibit classic influences from Boards of Canada („La Marbrerie“) to SAW-era Aphex Twin („Raverie“), euphoric dancefloor rhythms sit next to contemplative synth work. Tracks like „Sophora Japonica“ showcase Rone's mastership in atmosphere, which sometimes requires no drums at all. Elsewhere, Rone is clearly reviving the club-centric vibe of „Tohu Bohu“ and experimenting with elements of dub. It all makes for an adventurous and rewarding listen. Most importantly, Rone is redefining the notion of „organic“ in electronic music through use of field and voice recordings. Be it his own child chattering, Aurelien Barrau or Alain Damasio debating, or the dance troupe rehearsing and discussing the show

A devotion to extensive research of the history of club wear has been at the forefront of MISBHV's design philosophy, since its founding in 2015 by creative director Natalia Maczek. Exploring the intersection of fashion and the 90's underground the Poland-based collective with previous ties to Maison Martin Margiela, Balenciaga and Antwerp's Royal Academy of Arts paint a landscape of roughness, fun, nostalgia and futurism in a subversive marriage of fashion and music. After collaborating with a diverse range of partners - from Unsound and CXEMA to Dixon's Transmoderna, MISBHV will be releasing its first physical record in late April 2020. The debut EP is intended as an open, collaborative space for artists connected with the label - bridging the world of music and design, taking the form of a one-off collectible - the distilled essence of MISBHV. The debut record brings together DJ Hell and Wolfram - with original work, remixes, as well as two exclusive "MISBHV Edits" courtesy of DJ Hell and Wirski. The release is co-curated by King Of Kong Records

If Galaxy Lane's first EP didn't send the portals of time and space upside down, then the second EP will throw you down a vortex of hypnotic grooves juxtaposed with eerily erratic rhythms built in outer space. The first of two EP's to be trusted in the hands of Lone Romantic, 'Night' and 'Later That Night' will explore the concept of capturing moments in time. Maybe Galaxy Lane can best summarise... "I want people to really feel the mistakes in this music, the dirt, the rough and raw approach, the 'sitting on the floor surrounded by wires at 3am messing with synths' approach. That to me is the magic of this music, the interaction of man and machine, to hear the nuances, the tweaking of knobs and pushes of faders. I think we have lost that somewhat with digital technology, and have lost a lot of feeling in the process" 'Night' will propel the listener into ethereal textures layered over rough and raw beats, as outlined on opening track 'Deep Space Nine'. If that sets you up for thinking this will be a dreamy ride, 'Communication' hits hard at the rear of the spaceship, coming at you with intergalactic bleeps, zaps and back cracking rhythms made for getting down

Ribé joins Boddika's Nonplus Records imprint with his debut modular techno album entitled 'Tested Signal LP'. Longstanding analogue enthusiast, producer and live performer Ribé is no stranger to the world of reduced and perfected techno having racked up countless hours amongst the cables and steel crates of his sound-producing machines. With previous releases on Non Series, Ex Aequo, PoleGroup's sub-label AINE and with upcoming cuts on Warm Up and Token, alongside regularly appearing amongst Madrid's club circuit, all play a vital part to fueling his credible and growing catalogue. The Spanish artist now delivers an ensnaring collection, that reflects the modular performer's current output, on his first album - a project encompassing fifteen-tracks - which places focus on dark warehouse and machine-like sounds that engulf rhythm. 'Overture' opens with distant chords and a sparse atmosphere that is jarred by occasional glitches, both 'Tested Signal' and Ribé & Boddika's collaborative cut 'Fusion' follow with sparking analogue qualities and buried sub-frequencies

Rekids label boss Radio Slave ventures further into unknown territory in a three-part sophomore album entitled 'Radio Silence' with the first instalment dropping in June. Stretching nearly two decades, Matt Edwards's discography is staggering with releases on labels like Running Back, R&S, Ostgut Ton, Nonplus and Figure, not to mention his illustrious imprint Rekids which has been instrumental in supporting the music and careers of incendiary artists over the years, including Nina Kraviz, Mr. G, DJ Deep, Nic Fanciulli, Peggy Gou, Laurent Garnier, Spencer Parker and many more. Although he's released multiple albums under different guises it was only until 2017 that the debut Radio Slave album, 'Feel The Same', was released. Now, the renowned UK artist delivers his latest body of work in the form of his 'Radio Silence' album, which will be dropping in not one, but three parts. The first chapter features perhaps the most leffield tracks we've ever heard Radio Slave produce, even hitting 150BPM on closing track 'SYD'

TUNNEL GUITARS & SPECTRAL LOOPS In her new sonic fiction, Rosa Arruti aka Nad Spiro reveals an unusual dimension of her work, using just one guitar and four pedals on her sonic explorations through the lost quarries of Montjuïc, the legendary mountain of Barcelona. Armed just with her guitar, Spiro activates subterranean echoes, spectral loops and secret vibrations on an initiation trip through invisible labyrinths. Enigmatically as ever, she invites us to go deep into the sound magma while dedicating each composition to one of the lost pedreres (quarries) of evocative name, hidden nowadays under a different urbanscape. AUDIO INVOCATIONS The Spanish experimental pioneer Rosa Arruti - an essential figure in Barcelona's cutting edge music scene since the late seventies - has worked for many years under the secretive alias NAD SPIRO, a solo venture where she explores unfrequented audioZones in the outer peripheries of electronica, building her complex guitar sounds into a world of unique textures and sound fictions
