DISCO / FUNK / SOUL REPRESS ITA
Though Club Band's "Club is My Passion" was written as a radio jingle, it is nonetheless a dancefloor bomb. As was the case in 1987, Best Record Italy presents the track as a vocal and instrumental version, and in the vocal cut, marimbas dance aside swinging funk guitars as claps fire over pianos and hard hitting disco drums. Brass leads mesmerize the mind before the track drops into a minimal verse, where electro rhythms and slap basslines flow beneath a cool masculine croon, which is at times supported by backing vocal and whispers of funk guitar. During ascendant choruses, erotic screams and diva dreams coalesce as computronic tracers spread out in every direction. And in exciting most of the vocals, the accompanying instrumental version pushes ever closer towards dancefloor detonation

A foray into deep, organic, cinematic dance music. Subterranean bass, intercepted alien transmissions, and stripped down dance-beats meld with sheets of sounds that roll over the listener like waves lapping up on the shore. Shimmering, watery, brain hemisphere synchronization tones caress and melt stress away.

Dance floor friendly tracks that work equally well in one's private listening space. Immersive music with a distinctive aquatic quality. Inspired by Detroit & Berlin's dance genres, but tempered by more ambience / atmosphere than one would expect from those genres. Music without harshness or rough edges. Fuzzy, out-of-focus, soft-sounds that slip in and out of the listener's consciousness. Uniquely melds current dance rhythms with lushness and spirituality. Synesthetic sounds that trigger sensory experiences in cognitive pathways other than hearing smells of perfumes, thoughts of colours, and altered perception of time and space. Psychoacoustic, cerebral, electronic listening music for those wanting a different experience than the current harsher, darker dance trends are offering. Responsibly made gentle music designed from the ground-up to have a positive effect on the nervous system and leave the listener invigorated and recharged. Chi-building sonic balm. Timeless, exotic dance tracks for a new school of electronic music enthusiasts who are searching for beautiful sounds, crafted with a higher purpose in mind

Fueled by the extra time and space to be creative during lockdown, Drumcode's collective of artists have stepped up. Across 17 contributions, the producers have gone deeper into their sonic repertoire, crafting powerful, yet reflective works that capture the range of the label's sound. Jay Lumen leads the way with a rousing riff-driven weapon, 'Galactic Rainbow', while Ramon Tapia brings us the muscular gem 'Drum Control', mixing up ruffneck techno with a barrage of synapse-flicking synths in the second half. Both rousing highlights of the compilation. Victor Ruiz, Drumcode's most prolific contributor in 2020, dishes up 'Love Story', led by a huge vocal lead. Zimmz also returns with 'Tension', which deftly combines deep squelchy grooves with a silky synth interlude. Thomas Hoffknecht follows up his debut on Vol.9 with 'Escape', keeping listeners on their toes with dynamic, choppy shifts throughout. Veerus joins with another stirring addition 'I Know', reinforcing why Beyer rates him so highly. Elsewhere a string of debutants feature: buzzy newcomer Lilly Palmer gives us 'Amnesie', a brilliantly pummelling and eerie cut

Even though a remix under that name appeared on the label before, this is the first Cornucopia's solo release on Lost & Found, the world's leading platform for the genre and related subgenres. Keeping the authentic and recognizable sound signature, Dragons In Paradise delivers an encouraging and melodic theme with a Balearic influence. "The Unicorn" gets right down to business, siren-ated synths engulfing the hardened doofs for a too'd up ride through the wild and uneasy. "Dickheads" proves heavier with an rising acid line leading the march to addictively hypnotic militant drums. The flip gets funkier with Sphinx's staccato'd snares bouncing around a kinetic melody via peak time pace for prime floor effect. Our finale then involves the incredible title track, locking in for a mesmerising frenzy of pressure cooked 303's, high hats & kicks that will surely ravage the rave, whenever it may be

Waterford hero Cailin inaugurates Gurriers with her solo debut Phantom Love Affair. 4 tracks of gritty, hardware focused techno with impressive variety and measured dancefloor focus that prove the producer to be one of Ireland's finest. "The Unicorn" gets right down to business, siren-ated synths engulfing the hardened doofs for a too'd up ride through the wild and uneasy. "Dickheads" proves heavier with an rising acid line leading the march to addictively hypnotic militant drums. The flip gets funkier with Sphinx's staccato'd snares bouncing around a kinetic melody via peak time pace for prime floor effect. Our finale then involves the incredible title track, locking in for a mesmerising frenzy of pressure cooked 303's, high hats & kicks that will surely ravage the rave, whenever it may be

One year after the first excursion into his haunting world of sonic spaces on the Analog Amputations EP, machine wizard CVBox strikes back on Uncanny Valley with the follow up "Trawler Crossing". And from start to finish this EP is a journey between Techno and Ambient full of unheard noises and grasping rhythms. In the title track the beat rides on spooky pads that flow down like lava from a volcano. The more the whipping drums come into play, the more captivating the atmosphere evolves. "Echo Place (Canyon Version)" is CVBox in pure beauty. Starting with quirky synth-sounds that seem to talk to the listener, a dubby bass driven groove takes over to unfold an adventurous Techno track in all its glory. On the flipside "Leo on LFO (Accordion Partition)" takes its time to build up into an epic Electro track that is distinguished by the acidic synth-bass and outshining strings. The collaboration with his musical soul mate Micha Freier marks the end point of the EP. "Remind 20 : 3" is a dreamy slow burner that seductively puts its arms around you after all. The cover artwork was created by photographer Felix Adler from Leipzig

Scherbe is back on Uncanny Valley with his second full length EP. After his recent contribution to the UV20- compilation and a record on Fourth Wave he returns with the aptly titled "Late Nite Safari" and shows off again his knack for rumbling beats and fuzzy synths. "Poison Hiltz" builds up on steamy percussions and a slowly rising bass line arpeggio that unfolds completely when the hi-hat drops in. You won't notice that wonderful synth pad coming but when it's there everything sounds right in place. "Long Time No Sea" is based on cowbell-heavy beats and tiny xylophone sounds. Completed by a yearning vocal sample and catchy guitar licks it keeps your head nodding. Scherbe's unique drum programming makes it stand out from most of the typical Deep House tracks and he makes sure that all the elements flow together into his distinctive groove. On the flipside, "Mosquito Beach" creates a tropical atmosphere with bird-like tones and sound textures of high humidity. With a piano loop rising up and down plus deranged organ sounds he brings things to a pretty mysterious end

the debut LP from PODIUM de València. Conceived by Nick Trampolino, armed with a drum machine and a guitar, this once personal project quickly evolved into a five-piece platoon with the addition of Salva Frasquet on guitar, Ximo Barceló on bass, Miguel J. Carmona on drums, and Africa Mansaray on vocals. Pulsating with the epic aggression of hardcore, the impersonal and perverse tone of industrial metal, and fully balanced with the liveliness of the authentic surf scene, we'll be so bold as to describe them as a curious mixture of Ministry (circa '89), Man or Astroman? and the goddamn Go-Go's ablaze with the pyromaniacal tendencies of Steve Albini's Shellac. The combination of speed, skill and abrasiveness here converts every track into a 2 minute descent into the kind of hell you've been dying to enter

The legendary Dutch producer here uses his original Terrace moniker and presents four new tracks touching the brilliance of original Detroit Techno. Stefan Robbers was one of the very first in Europe to produce and connect with the Detroit oriented techno scene, with his debut release "916 Buena Avenue" on the legendary Djax-Up-Beats label as early as 1990. His Isolation EP brings four brand new trademark Terrace tracks. 'Sonomatic' has the original emotive Technosoul, reminding of early Model 500 works. 'Sunset Route' touches the European synth/Kraftwerk lines where 'Magic Potion' is a bright uplifting dancefloor mover. Closing track 'Voices From The Moon' finishes the pack with a more introvert and much darker approach

It was a pretty easy decision for us to call the remixes in for a record that had everyone wafting. Firstly, for those of you that missed out last time around we figured it'd be a nice touch to have the original mix of "International Waffer" to kick us off. As they say, if it's nice - play it twice. Label mainstay and pal from across the pond, Ciel, takes the title track and entices us down the rabbit hole. Layering it up with an eery vocal and simply - we love it. Over on the flip Roza Terenzi turns in her signature hedonistic blend of future squelch and thumping 5am elbow burners. It'll get you going. Our lad, Seb Wildblood closes out proceedings with almost a prime era "cough" Innervations "cough" peak time, low end, percussive blinder. It's really great. We will continue to waft, regardless of the weather

A1 > nohemian rhapsody	Dark and driving, these four tracks from Sonohat paint a monochromatic landscape tinted with mysterious melodies. "Nohemiann" sets the tone of the album with distorted chords and a whipping baseline. Next, fellow Romanian Vid's remix of "Nohemiann" subtly strips down the original with haunting, indiscernible whispers. On the B side, "Another Bottle of Wine" slurs vocals and drones to tell a textured story while the kick continues relentlessly. "Chains" returns to a groovy bassline and a nostalgic, yearning melody that reminds us how even the ability to turn everything to gold could, ultimately, be a curse

A1 > dusk Lefthook	Vuew's artistic vision is to curate a platform where forward-thinking meets the arts of organic and detailed-orientated underground dance music that dominates Southern & Baja California. Lefthook and Paulo embody that vision with their Once in the West EP. Once in the West is a personally creative collaboration between Lefthook and Paulo, two of our record label's core members and close friends whose collaborative chemistry dates back to their audio engineering college classmate days. This EP represents the summation of their musical development so far, imbued with their native West Coast House roots, love for creative technology, and passion for producing soulful, heavy funk-based music with purpose. The result is a blending of talents, artistic convictions, and a rare yet organic way of feelings things alike. This EP is full of emotion and energy. A1 > byronic hero New Frames	Haven are back with another instalment on their white label series with their third VA compilation on "Sardonic Tonicity Vol. 3", with three label mainstays and one fresh face to the imprint. The A1 kicks things off with "Byronic Hero" from German techno power-house New Frames. Screeching, sinister, syncopated synth work propel the track alongside driving drum patterns and flawless production techniques in this speedy banger. Haven label boss Keepsakes follows on the A2 with "Oblivious Civics", where distorted drum work, ominous vocal samples, and an ear-worm synth hook make for a malevolent dance-floor smasher. On the flip Italian metal-head Ayarcana returns to Haven for the first time since his split EP with Keepsakes in 2018 on the B1 with "Bring Nothing Take Nothing". Rolling percussion and a rumbling kick drive the track forward alongside eerie drones and creative doom-y modular synth programming in a destructive crusher of a track. Finally the B2 closes the release with "Overmonitored" from Barcelona's Surit of NX1 fame

"Getting to work with Mark Ernestus is a real honour, I collected his and Maurizio Von Oswald's work for many years and still do," he remarks. "It's hard to avoid the influence of these guys in electronic music across genres and so it is a real pleasure to have Mark do his thing with the Badman tune which I think sounds closely related." us based label, and welcomes spanish producer Senora for a stunning new double gatefold album entitled "Fosil" that showcases his unique take on hypnotic rhythm, found sounds and sampling. Senora became a firm favourite with the likes of Andrew Weatherall (R.I.P.) and Sean Johnston for his rugged grooves and innovative approach to production, melding the sounds of machines, animals, electricity and other weird noises in a flurry of FX and sonic experimentation. He debuted on this label in 2017 and has also landed on Shango Records, Night Noise and LNDKHN since then. Now based in Berlin and a regular at clubs and festivals round Europe he offers up a debut album that features nine stunning pieces that "aim to reflect on the next evolutionary steps of the human race". The otherworldly Prelude: Ocaso Hominido" kicks off with a swampy bass sound overlaid with cosmic details and downtempo drums. It's a brilliantly mysterious opener that leads on to "Antropoceno", a spacious soundtrack with bubbling synths, undulating drums and plenty of sonic details that paint a picture of a starry night sky up above. The tumbling drums of "Segundo Sexo" sink you into a dubby reverie with bird calls and wordless vocal sounds mixing with percolating percussion. The excellent "El Elefante Que Siempre Andaba Solo" is a perfectly flabby and chugging dark disco cut with bright chords and scintillating drum work while "Codigo y Marfil" is a futurist landscape in outer space with modulated synths and deft astral details making it colourful and cinematic.
